To Whom it May Concern:

I am writing as a reference for Mr. Heath Kelly, who was my general contractor for the home I currently reside in. I have known Heath for almost two years and I have been very impressed with his honest and straight forward work ethic. I am delighted with my new home which I have lived in for a year now. I have built several homes and have extensive renovation experience. Due to the demands of my job I needed a gerneral contractor for the build.

I bought an older home that was beyond renovation. Heath partnered with me to salvage the older home of hundred year old doors, windows, claw foor tub and old growth pine lumber. I wasn't looking for the typically cookie cutter, lowest bid contractor. I needed a contractor to partner with me in a design build arrangement to insert the salvage componets into a modern house We wanted our home to blend into the established neighborhood. Heath assisted with design and build details to make our house look like it was always there. Heath partners with quality subcontractors that have the same work ethic as him. For instance, Heath provided a speciality sub for tongue and groove decking in exposed eaves for the old world charm. These types of details sets Heath apart from other builders.

I didn't know Heath before contracting him to build my home. After meeting him a quickly surmised that I could trust him. Buying and building a house is one of the five largest sources of stress. You need a general contractor that you can trust. You can trust Heath to have the technical savy, business acumune and trust worthiness to walk with you through this somewhat hectic time. Having partnered with Heath to have my home built, I can say that our friendship has grown and not soured. This speaks volumes to the type of general contractor you want working with you.

Please feel free to contact me if you have any questions.

Sincerely,

Bruce O. Bare
