To Whom It May Concern:

Re: Heath Kelly – General Contractor

I have had the pleasure of working with Heath on a number of projects through the years. In his position as a project manager, he always was thorough and professional with owners, design professionals, and subcontractors. Most of these projects were negotiated contracts, requiring a tremendous amount of trust among all parties to make sure the project objectives (especially budget) were met. Heath always put the needs of the owners first.

Through his varied experiences in the construction industry, Heath has gained the experience and knowledge to now provide services through his own company. I'm sure anyone who chooses to work with his company will be pleased about both the process and end product. The design and construction process is a daunting one, especially for a first-time client, but Heath has shown me that he has the ability to successfully navigate through the hurdles.
